

Copyright, International Film.

Latest photograph of Raymond T. Baker, Director of the Mint, and his bride, who was Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. It was taken on their arrival at San Francisco on their honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Vincent Astor (in the foreground, wearing a white blouse), photographed in front of the Y. M. C. A. canteen she is conducting at a French port for American soldiers and sailors. Sometimes as many as 1,500 guests are served at the canteen.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

There are hospitals for horses as well as for men on the war fronts, even in far Mesopotamia, where the photograph shows a British veterinary surgeon performing an operation.

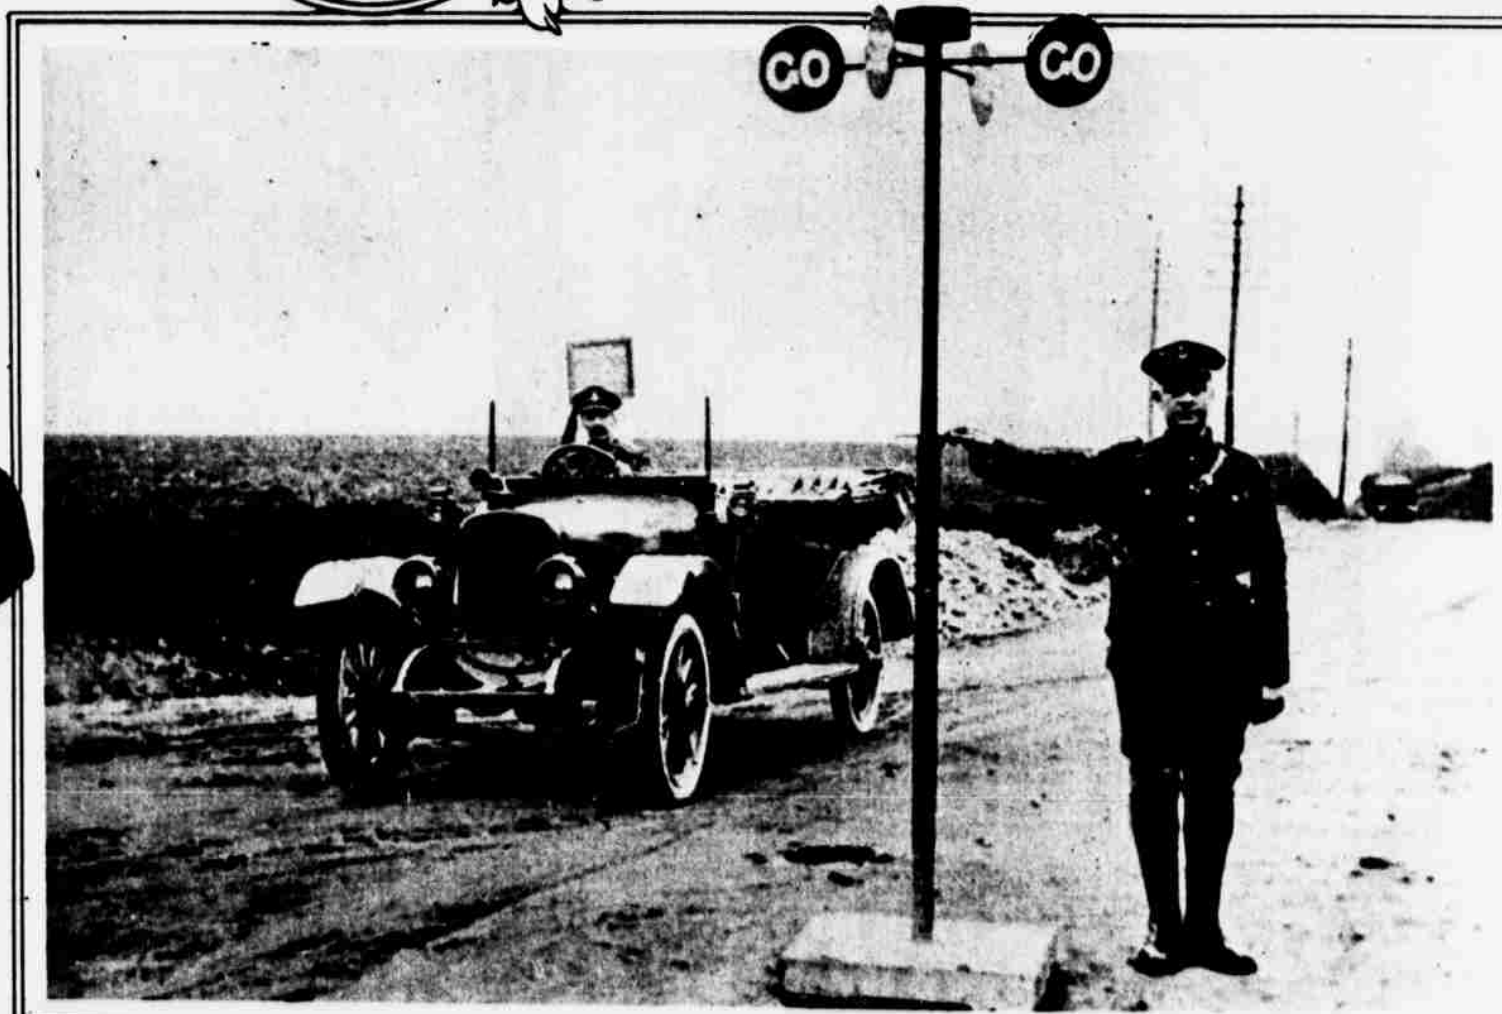

British official. Copyright by Underwood & Underwood.

The Eagle's Nest: home built in camp out of all sorts of oddments by a British air hero, Major Murlis Green, for himself, his wife and his baby son.

Irene Bordoni is on the camel. Blanche Ring is laughing. From the camel's expression it is probable Raymond Hitchcock is continuing the long distance monologue contest told about in THE SUN. It was at the "Hitchy Koo" field day at Luna Park for the Stage Women's War Relief.

Photo by Paul Thompson.

Both Fifth avenue and the British front in France have traffic problems, and so the semaphore links them. About the soldier who is working it there is a vague suggestion of a traffic cop. The semaphore is at one of the busiest traffic centres on the British western front.

British official. Copyright by Underwood & Underwood.